ABOUT THE BOOK

- What is Bermuda triangle?
- What is inside the Bermuda triangle?
- What about the missing flights and ships?
- Who is inside and what is happening?

These are the common questions that will wander your mind and me too. People are searching answers for these questions but I created an answer likely to believe, but not real....may be real.

This book is all about a boy who is in his traveling into the Bermuda triangle with his father, history teacher and his funny friend Eric and finding all the hidden secrets of Bermuda triangle in order to stop the Bermuda disaster.

This book has been written after further discussion and calculation. If you have to experience the whole book about the crazy idea of traveling into the Bermuda triangle.....Imagine it.

CHAPTER 1

THE STRANGE DREAM

It was an early morning, too early when nobody rouses up from their bed in the whole city, except howling of the street dogs at the full moon. But, still there is a soul out of sleep, sitting with his laptop, staring at the clock, with a bottomless thinking. A boy who has a pretty brain both inside his skull and in his name is Brainstin. He is not an early bird, rather has a capacity to sleep till 10.00am. Still, he is not allowed to.

What keeps him awake? Who is not allowing him?

The dream that comes every day, the dream with punctuality that comes exactly at 3.00 AM. That's not the same dream comes to you like playing on a chocolate pond, flying over the clouds, money rain etc. but something like chasing by a velociraptor, falling from the plane, fighting with T.Rex etc. That was something usual, but that night the dream was not attractive as he saw a group of flights and ships are being sucked inside the ocean and with a word....

"Uss cyclops....mh370"

And that's the reason for his sudden wake up and deep thinking.

"Codes????.....this is new" he thought he could google the code, but the search result was not that helpful

"Weird dream!!!!" He wondered.

With full of confusions, questions, stress, depression etc., he went back to sleep.

"Wake up! Wake up! Wake up!....."
The speaking clock alarmed as soon as he closed his eyes.

"Ohhhhhhhhh!!!!!" He said getting up. "One day.....I am gonna crush you."

He crawled to the wash room half awakened, as the dream still wandered his mind. After an hour, Brainstin came out, wiping his specks, stylized by his sneakers, cool spikes, and trendy hoody.

He sat comfortably on the sofa, with his right hand holding a cup of coffee and the left his iPad.

"Bad night!" He said as he clicked the news app.

"Malaysian airlines mh370 missing.....no sign of wreckages.....doubt prevails on Bermuda triangle"

Brainstin got stuck by that hot news until his hot coffee became cold.

"Good morning brainy!!!" a voice arrived as Brainstin relieved from that shock.

It was Brainstin's dad, Mr.Freddy, stood near his lab with a set of wires. Brainstin belonged to a family of scientists, his great grandpa, his grandpa, dad all were great scientists and now, Brainstin was also aiming to become an electro scientist, so he had chosen electronics in his college.

"Bad morning dad!" Replied Brainstin as he kept his iPad down.

"Any interesting dream?" Freddy asked with a chuckle.

"Not funny dad!!" said Brainstin in an irritable voice.

Freddy took the iPad and glanced the news....and soon his face changed more duller then Brainstin. He kept the iPad aside suddenly, wiped his sweat and went to his lab with no words.

This is not something new to Brainstin as this happens every time when there are some weird news about Bermuda triangle. Freddy is totally a mysterious character that has many secrets dumped inside his heart, who often spends time only with his messy lab and wires and seldom spends time with Brainstin and disappears suddenly.

Brainstin kept his worries inside as he grabbed his bag, took his skate board and moved towards his college.

Usually the college begins at 9.00am. Brainstin is the first one to enter in and Eric was the last student. Brainstin and Eric are close friends from the day they were born in a same hospital treated by same doctor. Both are different in character. Brainstin is a cool, and an intelligent not a science nerd with weird specks.

Eric is a fun lover and a care free guy who needs only fun and food. His only hobby is eating and his study at that college is just a mishap made by his parents without his willingness. However, there is one thing that they have in common. They don't like Philosophy class so they use a hologram for fooling Dorvis (the philosophy tutor). They both enjoy Mr. Brinkin's science class not because they like Mr. Brinkin. He is one of the strange characters, stronger than Mr. Freddy. He looks smart, intelligent and had a good profile. His intelligence comes alive and unleashed only during his lectures and he won't speak to the pupils out of the class or to other tutors even as if his brain pearls vapor if he talks to them. Brainstin and Eric entered the college with full of excitement.

"Hey dude..... what a perfect day...uh" said Eric as they enter in.

"Yeah...cool climate, no sign of philosophy... Dorvis.... Brinkin's science class.... pretty awesome" Brainstin replied as they seated on their desk with a big smile as the class was little noisy.

Suddenly, there was deafening silence in the class as Mr. Brinkin entered into with a big book on his hand.

"Good morning!!!!" everyone wished.

"I don't think so it's a Bad morning" he replied "as MH 370 is still under search."

"And today's lecture is all about Bermuda triangle" and as he switched on the projector, the lecture was on. However, Brainstin was unable to concentrate on the lecture, as the dream and the lecture interweave his mind...

"Hey....dude...what happened?" Eric shook him.

"I don't know...his lecture is disturbing me a lot" replied Brainstin before losing conscious a little. Suddenly Eric interrupted the lecture and said

"Uh.....sorry for the disturbance...but Brainstin is not in a good condition..."

Brinkin frowned at Eric for a second and made a noise

"Get lost"

"Yes sir... as you wish" Eric replied as they moved out of the class. Brinkin noted him hallucinated. Before Eric stepped out of the class, Brinkin called him.

"Hey you...Eric, meet me at my cabin, exactly at 12.00."

Eric nodded his head fast and they walked away.

CHAPTER 2

THE BRINKIN'S CABIN

Eric was shocked to hear Brinkin called to his cabin as he never allow anybody to his cabin even the Principal of the college.

That was shock to the whole college as the lunch hour filled with gossips about Brainstin. It was exactly 11.55 as Brainstin and Eric stood at the door step of the cabin puzzled.

"I think....he would have found our hologram trick in Dorvis class" Eric guessed as the door opened.

"May I come in sir?" Brainstin asked with a shiver as if he had a frog in his throat.

"Come in" roared Mr.Brinkin.

Brainstin and Eric entered the cabin with his eyes filled with curiosity and little fear.

To his surprise, his cabin was filled with photos, newspaper cut out proofs related to Bermuda triangle.

One thing that made Brainstin frozen was an image of a ship called "USS CYCLOPS" the same ship that he dreamt about.

"This....thi...s..thi..ship" he blabbered.

"Take your seats" said Brinkin.

"I've noticed a sudden change in your face where I specified about The Bermuda triangle, am I right?"

"What happened?"

"Why did that happen?"

Brainstin suddenly replied

"Dreams are my problem!"

Brinkin laughed and said

"Getting nightmares are common to human beings"

"But the dream that I got yesterday was something weird. The dream was like ships and flights sucked into the ocean,
